<Address of Corporation>

Dear <Name of Representative>

Notice of Confirmation of <Issue> Estoppel <by Acquiescence> as appropriate
<A Freeman's Reference>
Without Prejudice

This is a courtesy notice confirming the intentions outlined to you in my previous Notice dated <date>.

Whereas I have received no properly addressed and saluted reply by way of valid counter claim against the understandings previously outlined to you, and therefore no agreement to my conditional acceptance of the offer you apparently made in the form of demands upon <'Legal Fiction Name'>, within the <14 (fourteen)> day notice period of the recorded delivery receipt of said notice (a period which expired on <date>), I hereby give final confirmatory notice that this has been deemed by all parties to result in <'issue estoppel' (as the understandings were not validly counterclaimed against with appropriate proof of claim) and 'estoppel by acquiescence' (as no properly addressed and saluted reply has been received within the notice period)>.

(A Freeman uses both or either of the above claims of estoppel as appropriate to the circumstances)

Some correspondence from your organisation may have been delivered to my address, however if this was incorrectly addressed to <'Legal Fiction Name'>, rather than to me, the human man <A Freeman's Given Name>, of the family <'A Freeman's Family Name'> as commonly called. it will have been ignored and remained un-opened, and may have been returned to you, as was advised it would be under these circumstances in my previous lawful and honourable notice to you. Any future correspondence will be similarly treated. I have acted honourable by giving you prior notice of how you must address me and have therefore claimed the right, now and on into the future, to treat correspondence in this manner without dishonour on my part.

(A Freeman uses the above paragraph if the organisation wrote to his legal fiction again)

This now means you as principle and any agents or other parties you may appoint in this matter have abandoned all demands you may have thought you had upon me, the human man <A Freeman's Given Name>, of the family <'A Freeman's Family Name'> as commonly called.

Notice to principle is notice to agent and vice versa

Sincerely and without prejudice, ill will, vexation or frivolity
